A BRIEF HISTORY ABOUT SANDIA

To all the newcomers and established Sandia followers, here below is a general timeline of Sandia's history on Earth.

1990

- September : Tlkm ("Teal-come"), from Zeta Reticuli 2, arrived on Earth to manage The Sandia Mountain Information Station, located within the Sandia Mountain to the east of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

2013

- September : First telepathic "ping" received by Su Walker. Not knowing who Tlkm was at that time, Su named the being "Sandia."

2015

- May : Su set up a Facebook page (Sandia the ET) as per Tlkm's request.
- June : Su suggested that Twitter would be a more efficient means of interacting with Earth humans. Tlkm agreed and the Twitter account Sandia the ET \(@sandiawisdom\) was created.

2017

- Summer : Sandia announced that Official First Contact was planned for Fall 2021
- Fall : www.sandia.space was created (now defunct). This was subsequently replaced by the current website officialfirstcontact.com.
- December : "Telepathy 101 Manual" was published. This manual on how to develop telepathic skills. It was dictated to Su by T'ni, a P'nti staff member. It is available as a free download from officialfirstcontact.com. It has been translated to more than 10 major Earth languages.

2018

- January : Tlkm announced increased CE-5 (close encounter of the fifth kind), or in-person soft contact.
- August : "Inviting ET", written by Su Walker, Rev. Otter and the P'nti was published. This is a manual on how to host your own CE-5 event.

Authors note & Disclosure

AUTHORS NOTE

We, the authors of this document, have been following Sandia the ET for more than a year. We have noticed three distinct reactions amongst the followers :

1. Those who claim that Sandia is not an ET
2. Those who claim that Sandia is an ET
3. Those who don't know.

The aim of this document is to bring to you reasonable answers based on a logical and rational analysis through a series of relevant questions. This is handled in the appendix part and provided with links and illustrations as well.

Here after, you will read why we say that Sandia is an ET.

DISCLOSURE

Here are the results of our analysis regarding the fact that Sandia is a real ET :

1. Sandia is a biological being and not an artificial being (questions number 1, 2 and 3).
2. Sandia is not a joke (question number 6).
3. Sandia is neither Su Walker nor Rev. White Otter (question number 7).
4. Sandia is not a military scientific research group (question number 12).
5. Sandia is not a civilian scientific research group (question number 13).
6. Sandia is located in the USA and most probably near Albuquerque, New Mexico (question number 14).
7. Sandia does not show up because he is not allowed yet to do so (question number 16).

We, also, shed a little light on other areas regarding Sandia:

1. Sandia is following an underlying plan of his own that contains specific milestones.
2. The content of each tweet focuses on OFC with Earth humans in 2021.
3. This first contact approach (via Twitter) is similar to human being's dating and getting to know each other before meeting in real life.

Some of you may not arrive at the conclusion as we did. We respect everyone's opinion. However, for those who remain skeptical, we have listed four questions to seriously think about:

1. Why would an Earth human insist on developing your telepathic skills?
2. Why would an Earth human reply "I'm here for the water", when asked about the reason or their presence on Earth?
3. Why would an Earth human talk about a false flag disclosure and give details of the consequences?
4. Why would an Earth human spend more than four years on Twitter, chat every day, spread slowly disruptive knowledge and most of all, do it in a very wise and "rightminded" way?

Why would someone do this?

What do you think?

- Part 3 -
Appendix

Below is a series of questions that we consider relevant with regard to Sandia.

Is Sandia:

1. A trojan horse?
2. A bot?
3. AI (Artificial Intelligence)?
4. A troll?
5. A scam?
6. A joke?
7. Just Su Walker?
8. An account for selling merchandise?
9. Purely the imagination of one or more science fiction writers?
10. A person with Dissociative Identity Disorder (DID)?
11. A cult?
12. A military scientific research group?
13. A civilian scientific research group?
14. Located in the USA?

Furthermore:

15. Why is Sandia using Twitter to communicate?
16. If Sandia claims to be a real ET, why doesn't he just show up?
17. Is Sandia stating real or fake facts?
18. Why is Sandia talking about Official First Contact (OFC) in 2021?

1. Is Sandia a Trojan horse?

We do not think so because :

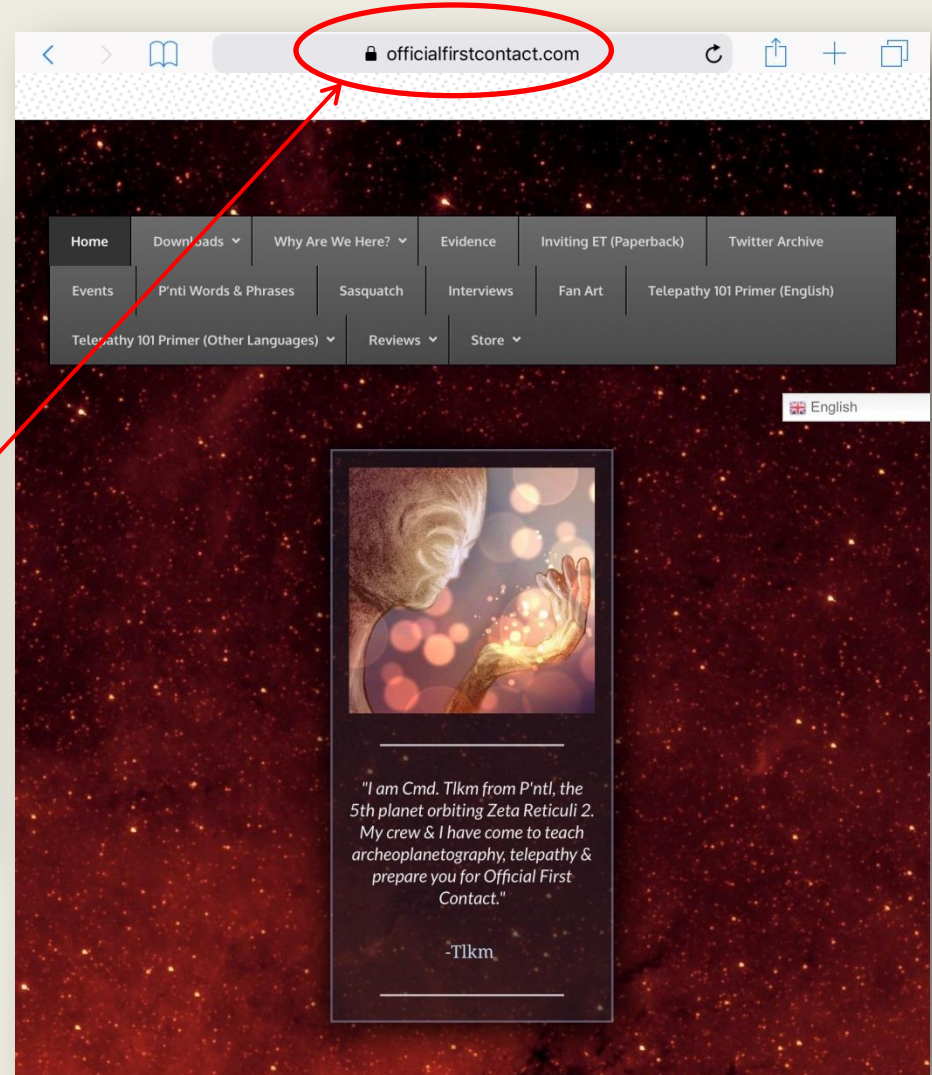

- ✓ The Twitter account is used as it's meant to be, for tweeting.
- ✓ Not one follower has reported that their account has been infected by a malicious computer program.
- ✓ The files, photos and links do not redirect you towards undesirable websites.

With reference to question number 1, here are screenshots of Sandia's account (left) and the webpage (2018) that the link points to (right).

2. Is Sandia a bot?

We do not think so because :

- ✓ The tweets are posted at random times, but mostly at night (MST).
- ✓ A bot does not draw your attention to a variety of subjects.
- ✓ Sandia answers the questions of his followers.

References : 1. Internet bot

With reference to question number 2, here are two examples: on the left, the Twitter account “Ummo Robot” is a bot and on the right a tweet that shows that Sandia is not a bot.

You forget we are ALSO human! 99.999% of the Star Nation visitors to Earth would NEVER consider Earth Humans as such. By the way, we don't refer to you folks here as "creatures" (as if you are lesser than us). We suggest using another term. - Jrooti

I support a pro human agenda. The only blood that gets spilled is the NTBE & EBE groups who are malevolent towards humans. You all don't realize how many of these creatures think of us as food. We may be ants to them but we have our ways of dealing with them.

We used to say Kwh (say kee-Wah-hoo or kee-Wah-hu) which loosely translates to the "blue water people." Traditionally, when a world approaches their Official First Contact, visiting Star Nations shift and adopt the name or phrase a sentient people call themselves.

3. Is Sandia Artificial Intelligence (AI)?

We do not think so because:

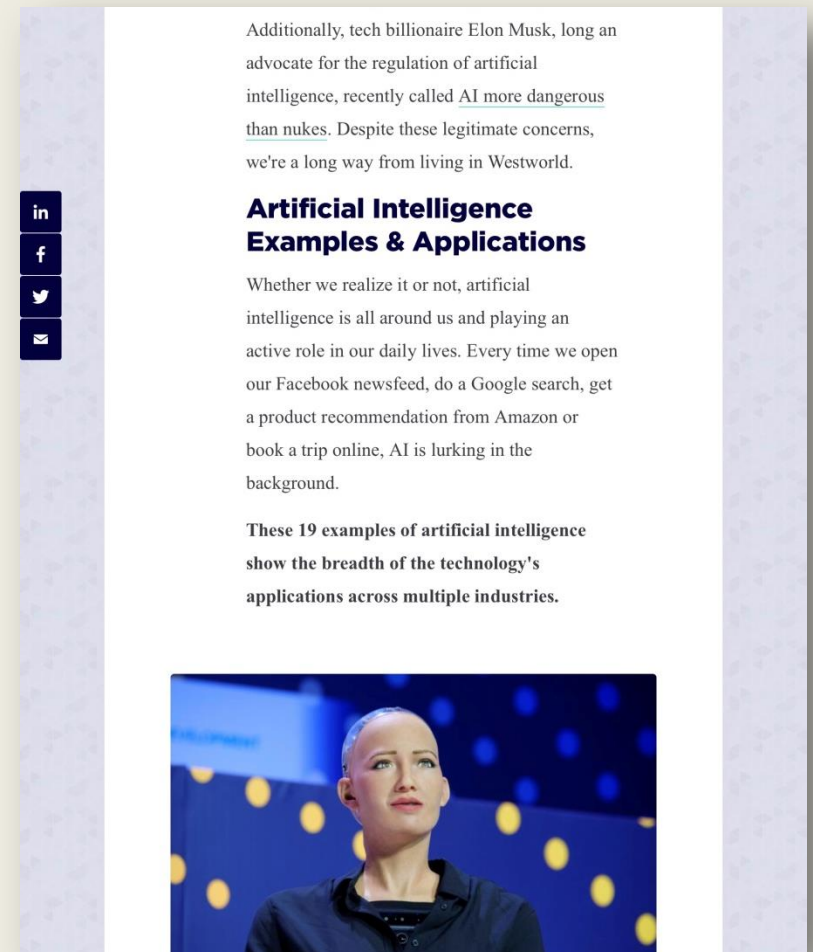

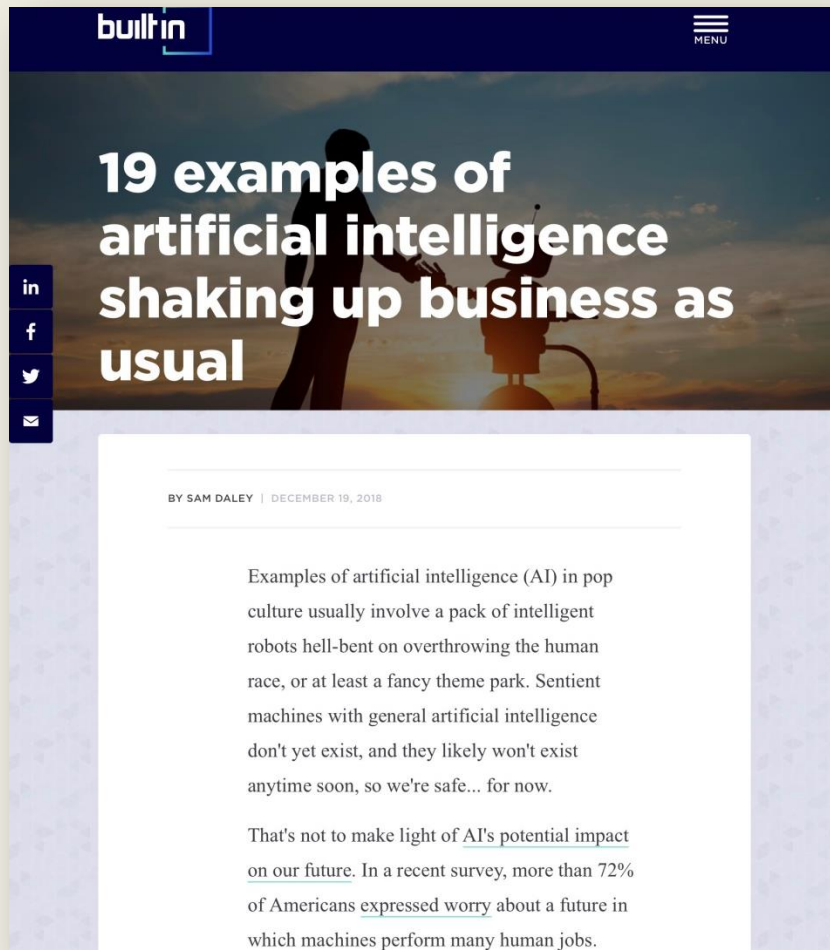

- ✓ AI can send tweets 24/7. Sandia can't do that.
- ✓ Sandia uses an adapted vocabulary for each individual and question.
- ✓ Sandia uses a wide spectrum of adjectives With reference to human feelings.
- ✓ Sandia makes jokes. AI does not.
- ✓ Sandia has a deep understanding of important topics. This requires high reasoning capacities.

With reference to question number 3, here is a screenshot of an issue dealing with AI.

4. Is Sandia a troll?

We do not think so because:

- ✓ The @sandiawisdom Twitter account has been in constant use since June 2015.
- ✓ There is a constant increase in followers.
- ✓ Sandia is very polite.
- ✓ Sandia asks everyone to “be polite with everyone”.
- ✓ Sandia warns trolls to stop before blocking them.

With reference to question number 4, here are a few tweets that confirm that Sandia can't be a troll and that he tries to domesticate "trolls".

5. Is Sandia a scam?

We do not think so because:

- ✓ Scammers want to get your money quickly.
- ✓ Scammers open and close multiple accounts rapidly. Sandia does not do that.
- ✓ Sandia's number of followers is continually increasing.
- ✓ Sandia never asks for money, publicly or privately (PM).
- ✓ A "donate" button appeared on the website (2018). People were free to contribute or not.

AUSTRALIAN
& CONSUMER
COMMISSION

Attempts to gain your personal information

Scammers use all kinds of sneaky approaches to steal your personal details. Once obtained, they can use your identity to commit fraudulent activities such as using your credit card or opening a bank account.

Buying or selling

Scammers prey on consumers and businesses that are buying or selling products and services. Not every transaction is legitimate.

Dating & romance

Scammers take advantage of people looking for romantic partners, often via dating websites, apps or social media by pretending to be prospective companions. They play on emotional triggers to get you to provide money, gifts or personal details.

Fake charities

Scammers impersonate genuine charities and ask for donations or contact you claiming to collect money after natural disasters or major events.

Investments

If you are looking for a fast way to make money, watch out – scammers have invented all sorts of fake money-making opportunities to prey on your enthusiasm and get hold of your cash.

Jobs & employment

Jobs and employment scams trick you into handing over your money by offering you a 'guaranteed' way to make fast money or a high-paying job for little effort.

Threats & extortion

Scammers will use any means possible to steal your identity or your money – including threatening your life or 'hijacking' your computer.

Unexpected money

Scammers invent convincing and seemingly legitimate reasons to give you false hope about offers of money. There are no get-rich-quick schemes, so always think twice before handing over your details or dollars.

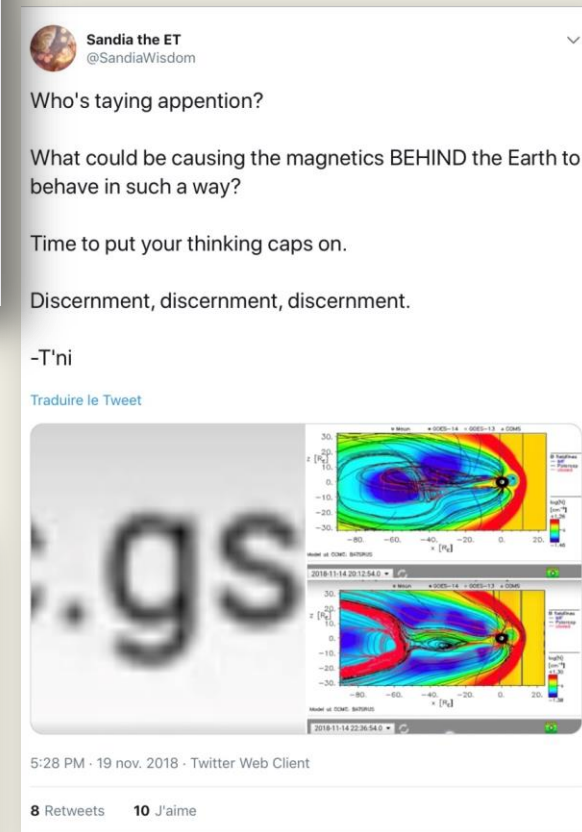

Unexpected winnings

Don't be lured by a surprise win. These scams try to trick you into giving money upfront or your personal information in order to receive a prize from a lottery or competition that you never entered.

Illustration 5a

Here are examples of tweets from Sandia which show that the whole thing is not a scam.

6. Is Sandia a joke?

Some people believe that Sandia is a joke because of the general way in which ufology is regarded. However, Sandia is not a joke because:

- ✓ Sandia is on Twitter almost everyday.
- ✓ Sandia answers people's questions.
- ✓ There are only charcoal portraits of Sandia. There are no realistic photos or pictures of Sandia.
- ✓ If Sandia were a joke we would have noticed significant errors, or illogical and inconsistent answers. This is not true in the case of Sandia.
- ✓ Sandia is following an underlying pattern of his own.
- ✓ Sandia's tweets are OFC oriented.
- ✓ The amount of information that has been supplied to date by Sandia would involve too many people.

7. Is Sandia just Su Walker?

Su Walker is the first person to publicly talk about Sandia. This has given rise to the suspicion that she has made the whole thing up. This is wrong because:

- ✓ Sandia asked Su to help him open the Twitter account.
- ✓ Sandia answers questions on many different topics. Neither Su nor any human currently possess such knowledge.
- ✓ Sandia's answers always make sense.
- ✓ Sandia is known to answer a lot of questions very quickly, sometimes within 5 minutes (see March 17th, 2019 - Twitter archive).
- ✓ Sandia asks curious questions that only Earth children could ask.
- ✓ Su slows down her natural speaking flow rate when she is in telepathic communication with Sandia.
- ✓ On September 1st, 2017, Su Walker and Rev. White Otter were at the Psychic and Spiritual Sasquatch Conference in Chewelah, Washington (USA). Chewelah is one hour behind Albuquerque's time zone. Su was filmed speaking at 1:30 PM, at the same time Sandia sent a tweet (2:30 PM - Albuquerque time).
- ✓ After listening to Su and Rev. White Otter radio interviews, there is no indication that either of them is pretending to be an ET.

8. Is Sandia an account for selling merchandise?

With regard to normal business practice as it relates to advertising and selling, Sandia is not an account for selling merchandise because:

- ✓ For the first four years of the life of the account the selling of t-shirts and books was done in a totally amateur fashion.
- ✓ Twitter is not the best platform for selling goods. Amazon or eBay are much better.
- ✓ The volume and rate of growth of twitter followers is too low for a commercial enterprise (8,000 followers in 2019, average increase of 2,000 followers per year).
- ✓ Sandia has not taken out any TV advertisements or done any online advertising.

9. Is Sandia purely the imagination of one or more science fiction writers?

The supposed writer does not follow the basic rules of fiction writing because :

- ✓ The characters (P'nti staff) do not interact with one another.
- ✓ There is no storyline or timeline. It is not a mystery or fantasy, in that the topics discussed can be quite mundane and do not really involve any great imagination.
- ✓ Twitter is not the best place to tell stories because of the limited number of characters (280 maximum).
- ✓ The writer(s), if they do exist, have not supplied sufficient material to flesh out a full book.

How to Write a Science Fiction Novel Series: 6 Tips

By: Guest Column | August 23, 2016

Want to write a science fiction novel? My day (night, weekend) job is teaching composition at a university to students who are mostly engineers and bio sci majors, business students, and the occasional computer scientist. Everyone likes lists and rules. Order imposed on the chaos, a sense of control. Writing scares them because they think it's this messy thing that just happens because of divine inspiration and miracles. (Truth: it is messy. Also truth: there are no miracles.) They worry about where the words are going to come from. Mostly they worry about how to start.

Yeah, well. Me, too. When you've got an idea in your head, and you need to tell the story, and you think it's gonna be big, where do you begin? Use this advice to write a science fiction novel.

This guest post is by K. Eason. Eason started telling tales in her early childhood and is the author of ENEMY. After earning two degrees in English literature, she decided to stop writing about everyone else's stories and get back to writing her own. Now she teaches first-year college students about the zombie apocalypse, Aristotelian ethics, and Beowulf (not all at once). She lives in Southern California with her husband and two black cats, and she powers everything with coffee.

1. Start with Questions.

Some authors like to start with characters; others like to create the world and then populate it. I say—the world is a character, and now we're just quibbling over which character we make first.

In practice, I do both in parallel; I might hear a character's voice in my head, or have an idea for a character concept, but then I have to start asking why: why is she angry? Why is he alone in the middle of winter in the mountains? Why are the legion troops running? Hey...why is that village on fire?

The answers to my whys build character and plot, but they also show me the scaffolding of the world I'm creating. Then I just have to go and fill in the gaps. (This is where a miracle might come in handy. Alas.)

[5 Writing Tips to Creating a Page Turner]

2. Create Complexity ... Slowly.

With On the Bones of Gods I started small, geographically: in Enemy, the story takes place during cold, snowy winter, in a small border city on the edge of an empire, where I could lay out the various ethnic and economic stress-points in the dominant culture. Then, in the second book, Outlaw, I moved the characters and action into the capital city, and further developed the political and socioeconomic conflicts within the Republic that would complicate the larger problem the characters are trying to solve.

As my plot in Enemy unfolded, my world-build had to expand and deepen as well. The world is also a character, in the sense that it develops, it changes, it has reasons that it works like it does. In a series, that character-world needs to be solid enough, realized enough, to sustain multiple installments. You should think about things like (but not limited to) gender, race, religions, languages, foods, music, taboos, regional quirks, accents.... And you'll need to repeat the process for every other culture your characters run into.

The more of those things that you know about, the more real the world feels. Then look for the seams, where say, class, gender and race intersect. The seams of a world are like tectonic plates building up pressure until something breaks. That's where the conflict happens. And conflict is what drives plot and character when you write a science fiction novel.

3. Be Consistent When You Write a Science Fiction Novel.

This is important in any novel; it's even more important in a series. Characters can, and do, develop. Worlds can also change and develop. But the rules, whatever they may be, need to remain consistent. If you establish in the first chapter of the first book that X happens because Y, you shouldn't change that in book three just because you got a better idea. If change happens, make it part of a story. Make sure there's a reason. This is true for characters, as well.

4. Character is Everything.

No matter how cool the world—no matter how detailed—characters are why readers stay with a book (or keep coming back to a series). Characters need to be unique individuals, not merely representative stereotypes of their respective culture/ethnicity/species, but also not so unique that they don't seem like they could have come from the world you've created. Sometimes an outsider POV character—like Bren, in C.J. Cherryh's Foreigner series, the lone human among alien atevi—gives the readers a path to understanding the otherness of the world, while showcasing the effects that otherness has on a normal human being. Sometimes several POV characters—as with Richard Morgan's Land Fit for Heroes series—offer readers several ways into the world, with different, and sometimes conflicting, perspectives. The tension among the characters, and their efforts to negotiate their differences, helps drive and complicate the narrative.

[The 5 Biggest Fiction Writing Mistakes (& How to Fix Them)]

5. Are We There Yet?

If you're planning a book series, you need some hint of how it all ends. Are you aiming at an open or closed series? Epic or episodic? Are you trying to change the world and the characters irrevocably by the end of your series, like Lord of the Rings? Or do you want smaller stories in which actions accrete to change the world and the characters over time, as happens in Richard Kadrey's Sandman Slim series?

6. One Book At A Time.

Regardless—and this is the may be the most important thing when you write a science fiction novel series—you're only writing (and your readers are only reading) one book at a time. If the series itself maps a whole storyline, then each installment, each new book, is a stop on the journey. At each stop, the characters get their arcs, they develop, and they achieve—or fail—in their goals. Each story needs to be able to stand on its own.

10. Is Sandia a person with Dissociative Identity Disorder (DID)??

We have not found any evidence of Sandia being an individual with DID because :

- ✓ Each P'nti staff member has their own style of writing style and, therefore, their own personality.
- ✓ The language in the tweets does not change drastically.
- ✓ The information provided within the tweets is consist.
- ✓ The tweets have an underlying logic which is to make friends and prepare for OFC.
- ✓ The vocabulary used does not match the symptoms associated with people who have DID.

With reference to question number 10, here are some details about the symptoms of DID

Dissociative Identity Disorder (Multiple Personality Disorder)

Dissociative identity disorder (previously known as multiple personality disorder) is thought to be a complex psychological condition that is likely caused by many factors, including severe trauma during early childhood (usually extreme, repetitive physical, sexual, or emotional abuse).

What Is Dissociative Identity Disorder?

Most of us have experienced mild dissociation, which is like daydreaming or getting lost in the moment while working on a project. However, dissociative identity disorder is a severe form of dissociation, a mental process which produces a lack of connection in a person's thoughts, memories, feelings, actions, or sense of identity. Dissociative identity disorder is thought to stem from a combination of factors that may include trauma experienced by the person with the disorder. The dissociative aspect is thought to be a coping mechanism -- the person literally dissociates himself from a situation or experience that's too violent, traumatic, or painful to assimilate with his conscious self.

Along with the dissociation and multiple or split personalities, people with dissociative disorders may experience a number of other psychiatric problems, including symptoms:

- Depression
- Mood swings
- Suicidal tendencies
- Sleep disorders (insomnia, night terrors, and sleep walking)
- Anxiety, panic attacks, and phobias (flashbacks, reactions to stimuli or "triggers")
- Alcohol and drug abuse
- Compulsions and rituals
- Psychotic-like symptoms (including auditory and visual hallucinations)
- Eating disorders

11. Is Sandia a cult?

We would not consider Sandia to be a cult because:

- ✓ Sandia does not have bad intentions.
- ✓ Sandia does not preach; he does not ask his followers to follow a dogma.
- ✓ Sandia's tweets sometimes mention religion or what might be termed spiritual matters, but not exclusively and usually only in response to the twitter follower's questions.
- ✓ Sandia asks his twitter followers to have their own beliefs and use their own discernment.
- ✓ Sandia does not talk about a prophet or a God.
- ✓ Sandia does not request money either publicly or privately to run a "cult".

Here is some information on how to identify a dangerous cult.

How to Identify a Dangerous Cult

It starts innocently: Maybe the new guy at work asks you to play bass in his indie rock band. A friend-of-a-friend invites you to a free vegan brunch. Your mother-in-law wants to share a life-changing home business opportunity with you. Accept the wrong offer, though, and you could find yourself dead-eyed, be-robbed, and dancing around a burning pentagram to usher in the Seventh Age of Blood Atonement.

No one wants that kind of life for you.

When people think of cults, they tend to picture bizarre religious sects and apocalyptic scenarios—the Branch Davidians burning up in their compound in Texas, or the corpses on the ground at Jonestown—but cults needn't be religious, and are anything but exotic. If you want to get literal about it, any group of like-minded people could be considered a cult.

"The Democratic and Republican parties are cults," explained cult expert Paul Morantz. "I'm in a cult where everyone wears the same color and we meet for rituals every Saturday. It's called the USC Alumni Association."

Morantz is an expert in distinguishing between innocent book clubs and apocalyptic death cults. He's been battling fringe groups like Synanon and The People's Temple in court since the 1970s, and he says that while cults can be seductive, the dangerous ones can be identified and avoided if you know what to look for.

"If a guy went to a bible study group that's a front for a dangerous cult, and he's been educated about how you can be done in by the group," Morantz said, "I think he could be OK."

Look at Who's in Charge

Cults are formed around strong leaders, so take a serious look at the motives and personality of the person in charge. According to Morantz and other cult experts, control-freak cult leaders are nearly interchangeable.

- Narcissistic personality—Dangerous cult leaders usually hold grandiose notions of their place in the world.
- Ability to read others— "A guy like Charles Manson had the ability to spot who, at a party, that he thought he could control. It just seems to be in his personality," Morantz said. Cult leaders "have the ability to size you up, and realize your weaknesses and get to your buttons."
- Claims of special powers: If a leader claims he's smarter, holier, and more pure than everyone else, think twice about signing up.
- Charisma meets anger: Dangerous cult leaders can be extremely loving, charming and affectionate, but often turn angry and abusive with no warning. This mercurial presentation keeps members off balance.

Look for Signs of "Brainwashing"

While the details of thought reform methods vary from cult to cult, the broad strokes have been around forever. So if you notice your righteous new friends using any of the techniques below, you might want to sneak out of the compound and call your dad:

- Isolation: Separating group members from family and friends forces them to rely on fellow cultists for all emotional needs. This is why many cults are based around communal living. (And why cult members are so boring.)
- Peer Pressure: It's nearly impossible to overstate the power of social norms on behavior—the only reason you're wearing pants right now is because that's what they expect you to do—but when you manipulated peer pressure consciously, you can make people give away their life savings, marry a stranger, or listen to the horrible rock opera you wrote.
- Confession: Dangerous cults are notorious for making members confess to past sins, often publicly, then using those confessions against them. Some groups keep elaborate files of their members' pasts for blackmail.
- Control: Cults often tell members when to eat, when to sleep with, and what to do every second of every day. This induces dependency, and leaves little free time to question what the hell you're doing handing out Bible tracts in Sausalito when you have a BFA in English.
- Sleep Deprivation: Simply keeping people from sleep or rest is amazingly effective at controlling their thoughts. As Chuck Dedeich, the leader of the Synanon rehab cult, described it: "If you keep people awake long enough, you can make them believe anything."

- Language Control: To enforce isolation, many groups replace common words with special jargon, or create new words to describe complicated abstractions. This makes conversations with outsiders tedious: It's just exhausting to explain the 17th Expositional Commandment of The Gospel of Norbert to your sister.
- Threats of Expulsion: Totalitarian groups often use the threat of expulsion to keep members in line. Once you've successfully defined the outside world as evil or deadly, it's easy to maintain discipline by threatening to throw someone out.

Ask Questions (Cults Hate That)

Maybe the easiest hallmark of a dangerous authoritative group is visible through its absence: Skepticism. Dangerous cults rarely, if ever, allow members to raise questions about the group or the group's beliefs. So the easiest way to suss out a dangerous cult may be to ask probing questions and note how they're answered. Even if you're just asking yourself.

"Back in the 60s, I was getting a lot peer pressure to take acid," Morantz said. "So I went to see Timothy Leary speak, expecting a scientific explanation of what LSD does.... Instead it was a bunch of slogans and everyone screaming and clapping."

"I wanted to stick my hand up and say, 'Can you stop the propaganda and just tell us what LSD is or does?' but I knew that if I did that, the mob would have attacked me. So I quietly exited, thinking I'd just seen the most dangerous man alive."

I'll leave Morantz with the last word, his personal failsafe method for determining whether a group is dangerous cult: "Count how many Hollywood stars are there," Morantz said. "If you get past five, get the fuck out."

Updated 10/9/17 3:34 p.m. A previous version of this article stated that Paul Morantz battled EST in court along with Synanon and The People's Temple in the 1970s. Mr. Morantz has never battled esi in court as far as we are aware. Rather, Mr. Morantz, according to other published sources, successfully advocated with the LAPD to prevent EST from being used as a training tool for the police forces.

Military psychology

Military psychology is the research, design, and application of psychological theories and empirical data towards understanding, predicting, and countering behaviours in friendly and enemy forces, or in civilian populations. There is particular emphasis on behaviours that may be undesirable, threatening, or potentially dangerous to the conduct of military operations. Military psychology utilizes multiple different psychology sub-disciplines to encourage resiliency among military troops and counteract enemy forces for military victories.^[1] The stressors and mental illnesses studied under military psychology are not specific to the military. However, soldiers often face unique combinations of stressors within combat and war settings, and may go on to experience stress-related psychiatric disorders.^[2] Specific examples of the issues faced by military personnel include posttraumatic stress disorder (PTSD), guilt, family and partner difficulties, and nightmares and flashbacks. Applied military psychology is especially focused on counselling, and treatment of stress and fatigue of military personnel and their families.^{[3][4]}

7 Unusual Experiments by the U.S. Military

From an Old West camel corps to nuke-carrying train cars, learn the stories behind seven armed forces programs that didn't go according to plan.

EVAN ANDREWS

1. The U.S. Camel Corps

Horses were the Army's primary form of transport during the 19th century, but things might have been very different if not for the failure of the U.S. Camel Corps. This unlikely experiment began in 1856 after Secretary of War Jefferson Davis imported a herd of several dozen camels from North Africa and Turkey. Davis believed the "ships of the desert" would flourish in the arid climate of America's newly acquired territories in the Southwest, and early tests and supply runs seemed to back him up. The camels could go days without water, carried heavy loads with ease and navigated harsh terrain better than mules and horses. One previously skeptical surveyor even dubbed them "noble and useful brutes" after they impressed during an expedition to the Arizona-California border. But while the camels' hardiness was never in doubt, the Civil War effectively ended their stint in the armed services. Army brass lost interest in the outfit during the march to war, and it was finally disbanded after the Confederacy—ironically, with Davis as its president—captured its base at Camp Verde, Texas. Most of the remaining camels were later auctioned off to circuses and private citizens. Others were turned loose, and their descendants were still being sighted in the wild as recently as the 1940s.

2. Project Iceworm

In 1958, the U.S. Army launched one of the most audacious experiments of the Cold War. As part of a top-secret project dubbed "Iceworm," they drew up plans to hide hundreds of ballistic missiles under Greenland's ice caps. Once operational and concealed beneath the Arctic snows, the sites would be poised for potential nuclear strikes on the Soviet mainland. To test out their designs, the Army first built Camp Century, a prototype ice base constructed under the guise of being a scientific research facility. This sprawling outpost consisted of some two-dozen underground tunnels carved out of the ice sheet and reinforced with steel and snow. It had living quarters for more than 200 people and boasted its own laboratories, hospital and theater—all of it powered by a state-of-the-art portable nuclear reactor. Camp Century may have been a technological marvel, but it was no match for Mother Nature. After only a few years, shifts in the ice caps caused many of its tunnels to become warped and structurally unsound. Convinced Greenland was no place for nuclear weapons, the Army reluctantly scrapped the project in 1966.

13. Is Sandia a civilian scientific research group?

Sandia is not using scientific best practice which requires:

- ✓ Team of specialists for each topic discussed on Twitter.
- ✓ Means of collecting data (followers answers).
- ✓ Time frame (duration of the experiment).
- ✓ Money, to finance research.
- ✓ Final goal for the experiment.

Classic Psychology Experiments

By Kendra Cherry

Updated December 09, 2018

The history of psychology is filled with fascinating studies and classic psychology experiments that helped change the way we think about ourselves and human behavior. Sometimes the results of these experiments were so surprising that they challenged conventional wisdom about the human mind and actions. In other cases, these experiments were also quite controversial.

Some of the most famous examples include Milgram's obedience experiment and Zimbardo's prison experiment. Explore some of these classic psychology experiments to learn more about some of the best-known research in psychology history.

1 Harlow's Rhesus Monkey Experiments

Martin Rogers/Getty Images

In a series of controversial experiments conducted in the 1960s, psychologist Harry Harlow demonstrated the powerful effects of love on normal development. By showing the devastating effects of deprivation on young rhesus monkeys, Harlow revealed the importance of love for healthy childhood development. His experiments were often unethical and shockingly cruel, yet they uncovered fundamental truths that have heavily influenced our understanding of child development.

In one famous version of the experiments, infant monkeys were separated from their mothers immediately after birth and placed in an environment where they had access to either a wire monkey "mother" or a version of the faux-mother covered in a soft-terry cloth. While the wire mother provided food, the cloth mother provided only softness and comfort. Harlow found that while the infant monkeys would go to the wire mother for food, they vastly preferred the company of the soft and comforting cloth mother. The study demonstrated that maternal bonds were about much more than simply providing nourishment and that comfort and security played a major role in the formation of attachments.

2 Pavlov's Classical Conditioning Experiments

Hulton Archive / Getty Images

The concept of classical conditioning is studied by every entry-level psychology student, so it may be surprising to learn that the man who first noted this phenomenon was not a psychologist at all.

Pavlov was actually studying the digestive systems of dogs when he noticed that his subjects began to salivate whenever they saw his lab assistant. What he soon discovered through his experiments was that certain responses could be conditioned by associating a previously neutral stimulus with a stimulus that naturally and automatically triggers a response. Pavlov's experiments with dogs established classical conditioning.

14. Is Sandia located in the USA?

We will take Paris, France, (UTC +1 hour) (1) to be the time reference.

Looking at a few random tweets we see that the time difference between Paris and the place of tweeting is eight hours. This indicates that Sandia could live in North America, Russia, China or Australia.

The hour and date indicated on the tweets shows that Sandia is living in North America. Otherwise, the date would be: day + 1.

Therefore, we can conclude that Sandia is located in North America in the Mountain Standard Time (MST) time zone.

There is no conclusive proof that Sandia is located in Albuquerque, New Mexico, but it so happens that the Sandia Mountains are in the MST time zone.

So my concern is not to let people be tricked. If I am wrong then what harm is it. But if I am right. I may have saved one soul. And that is fine for me. I am of love also. Always have been. Always will be. But I don't want to see people turned transhuman. So they lose heaven.

15. Why is Sandia using Twitter to communicate?

We may surmise that Sandia is using Twitter for the following reasons:

- ✓ To share common beliefs, behaviors, daily conversation.
- ✓ To build a durable and trusting friendship.
- ✓ To create no fear with a less advanced civilization.
- ✓ To retain an element of doubt as regards his real identity.
- ✓ To avail of the potential of Twitter for instant interaction with many people simultaneously. Other social networks do not have the same possibilities.

Talking and eloquence are not the same: to speak, and to speak well, are two things. A fool may talk, but a wise man speaks.

— Ben Johnson

Ah, the art of small talk. Sometimes it seems like there are those who are born with the gift of gab. But the truth of the matter is that being a good conversationalist is actually a learned skill. Which means, that with a bit of coaching and practice, anyone can mingle like a pro. So, what are the basics for meeting and greeting? Here are some tips to get you started.

Know Yourself – Always be prepared to give a self-introduction. Your name only gets you halfway there. You should also include a tidbit of information about yourself. It is this bit of information that will help you start a conversation or help the other person ask you a question. (i.e. “Hi, I am Jodi Smith, sister of the bride.” “Nice to meet you, I am Jodi Smith from Boston.” “Hello, I am Jodi Smith, I teach confidence.”)

Be Prepared – Before going to any event, have a few back-up topics of conversation in mind should there be a lull in the conversation. There are many “typical topics” so be sure to choose ones that interest you. (i.e. current events, movies, plays, concerts, television shows, books, school/work, hobbies, family, travel, sports, pets, and when in doubt, there is always the weather!)

Catch The Ball – Think of a conversation as a game of catch. You throw the ball, hold on to it for a few seconds, then throw it back to the other person, who catches it, holds on to it for a few seconds, then throws it back to you again. Repeat. Good conversations involve give and take. If you find that you are not talking at all or that you are doing all the talking, something is off in your game.

Keep the Game Going I: Non Verbal – There are two ways to make sure your conversation continues to flow. The first is body language. Your body should face the other person, shoulders squared to theirs, open body stance (make sure your arms are not crossed and that your hands are not hidden in your pockets!), and good eye contact. In addition to body language, you should also be using listening cues. Listening cues might include nodding your head, or an occasional “um-hum.”

Keep the Game Going II: Verbal – The second way to ensure your conversation flows is through the words you use. Be sure to ask open-ended questions – these are questions that require at least a sentence as an answer. (i.e. “How do you know the host/hostess?”, “What makes you say that?”, “What was your favorite vacation?”, “Tell me about...”)

Practice, Practice, Practice – Like any other skill, small talk and conversations should be practiced. Whether it is the cashier at the local bagel store, the librarian, a fellow commuter, or someone also waiting in line, try having a brief conversation about the weather or current events. The more you practice, the more comfortable you will feel, and the better you will be at small talk. (Please note: manners matter, but safety first. Do not strike up conversations with strangers while alone, at night, or in a potentially dangerous situation!)

Smile – I know, I know, it seems so obvious, but good conversationalists are also good smileers. Let's face it; we would rather speak to someone who is smiling than with someone who is not.

Good luck and get out there!

16. If Sandia claims to be a real ET, why doesn't he show up?

There are six possible reasons:

- ✓ Atmospheric conditions.
- ✓ Communication barriers (higher level of conscience).
- ✓ Sandia is attempting to avoid, or lessen the chances of, “ethnocide” (death of Earth human civilization (2)) .
- ✓ Reluctance to meet with a less advanced civilization that is still too violent.
- ✓ Before meeting someone it is advisable to take some time to get to know the person.
- ✓ He is not allowed to show up.

Below are a few tweets from Sandia explaining why he says he can't show up now.

17. Is Sandia stating real or fake facts?

We have cross-checked information from the Sandia account with Dolores Cannon's book “The Custodians, Beyond Abduction”, ed. 1999 (“Les Gardiens”, French ed., 2018). We can state the content of the Sandia's tweets are real facts because:

- ✓ The time frame 2020-2030 is consistent with a long planned official first contact by ET civilizations.
- ✓ Extraterrestrials have bases all over the planet earth.
- ✓ Extraterrestrials “created” earth humans.
- ✓ Extraterrestrials are here to help us on our evolutionary path.
- ✓ Extraterrestrials are waiting for us to join the “Galactic Federation”.
- ✓ Extraterrestrials says that there are different life forms in the galaxy.

THINGS ARE NOT ALWAYS WHAT THEY APPEAR TO BE 59

B: I asked him, "Who are you? I can't help but notice that your appearance is different from mine. Are you an extraterrestrial visitor or are you from a higher plane?" And he said he was from the council of elders. I asked him, "What is this council? Councils are usually to advise or to run a group or something." And he said that various visitors had been to various parts of the Earth and were bringing back conflicting reports about how far Earth had developed. There is a group that is in favor of open contact with humankind, and there's another group that is in favor of leaving humankind in ignorance, as it is now. And since he is part of the council of elders, they decided he would come on his own to see how things were on the Earth. It is rather a covert type mission, a fact-finding mission, you could call it. So they would have more information to base their decision on, whether to leave Earth in ignorance, or to contact humankind and bring them into light and health and knowledge.

D: Is that what you meant by "ignorance"?

B: Well, even though humankind suspects, and some wish and dream that there is extraterrestrial life, for the most part, so far as the officials in the governments are concerned, there is no such thing. That's what they mean by ignorance, by not accepting that fact. They have been thinking of contacting humankind in a way they could handle, that also would prove beyond a doubt that there is extraterrestrial intelligence. And they're living their own lives until such time as humankind catches up enough to be able to join them.

D: Is he having this communication with you by speaking words?

B: Not really. I guess you could call it "vocalized telepathy." I could hear him very clearly, as if he were speaking, but his mouth wasn't moving. I am assuming he was projecting his thoughts toward my mind, but I could perceive it as a very pleasant-sounding voice.

D: Then what happened?

S: The ones that are more humanoid-like are part of this galaxy system.

D: Do they have any bases here?

S: They have used two of the moons of Uranus. He's showing me Uranus, as a base station for their explorations in this part of the galaxy.

D: Do any have bases on Earth?

S: The humanoid-like have bases. He's showing me there's one located in the ocean. He's saying their craft can go into the water. This is located near the Caribbean Ocean. And there's another place that is high up in the mountains somewhere. Yes, it looks like South America that he's showing me, near the Amazon River. And then there's another place that he shows me in Australia or New Guinea, somewhere in that area near the ocean. These people, he's saying, are very much full of love and light, and are trying to help mankind. They've been coming to this planet for thousands and thousands and thousands of years. We would call them "The Watchers."

D: Do these people ever have contact with humans?

S: Yes, for specific reasons. Either to be instrumental in helping their spiritual growth, or to relay information about new inventions and things of this type. They will be of service as the Earth shifts.

D: The ones that are more humanoid, what about their craft?

S: They are normally the traditional saucer shape, basically made from some type of metal. It's a very shiny, shiny type metal. I don't know what kind of metal it is. He's saying, in the future you'll know about these craft and this metal, but it's not mined on this Earth. There's no metal comparable. And they power it by thought energy. That's the phrase he's giving me, "thought energy." It gives a rapid sense of propulsion by group thought energy. It's collected and stored as energy into batteries, and this motivates these ships.

@tsaiyoh There is a large combined facility in the Dulce area. I am not allowed to pinpoint its location due to security clearance issues.

@susan_darnell Yes, we honestly are. This area of the world has been an incoming vessel hub for several thousand years for a number of folks.

You can catch (day or night) quite a few ships over Mt. Fuji on film your eye cannot see. Note the types of craft typically observed. Are they 6 or 8 sided? Yes, there are underground Sauron and Reptilian facilities on the continent of Asia. Mt. Fuji's facility is multinational. -J glowing so much that I couldn't really tell if he had any particular colors around him. His skin and hair looked white, and his eyes looked silvery. And he was clean-shaven.

D: Did he still have the rays coming out of his eyes?

B: No, not when he was talking to me. But when he was looking around the landscape, he had the rays coming out of his eyes.

D: But nothing about it was frightening. It was just strange.

B: Really strange, but I really enjoyed it, because he didn't seem to mind my asking questions.

D: What other questions did you ask him?

B: I asked him if there really was life out there, or if that was just wishful thinking on my part. And he said, "Yes, there really is life out there, and it is very varied." There are many different kinds of life with all types of appearances and abilities. And several different races of beings are looking forward to humans finally developing reliable spacecraft, so we can join them and be part of the galactic community. And he said that different races have particular characteristics. Some are more belligerent than the others, and some races tend to be lighthearted and humorous. And then he said something I thought was strange, yet promising, too. He said, "But you'll learn all about that in a while." So I took that to mean perhaps within my lifetime humankind would reach out to the stars.

D: I wonder where this council is located? Did you ask him that?

B: He said it didn't have a particular location. They simply met wherever all the members decided. I got the impression there was one particular ship that was theirs. It's a very large ship, and they tended to meet on this ship most often to conduct their business. But the council members are from all different planets, to represent several different races.

D: But you said he had human features.

B: Yes, he appeared human. I asked him, "Life out there in the stars, does it come in all different unimaginable forms and features, or are they basically humanoid?" He said we would find life both ways: similar to us but a little different, and so totally different that it would be hard to believe they really are intelligent life.

D: You said you saw his hands. Did they seem like human hands?

B: They were very large, with long fingers. On the piano keyboard he could easily span a twelfth or a thirteenth without even straining, the way I can span a ninth or a tenth. (She was using her pianist's background to make a comparison.) And his fingers were long in proportion to the size of his hands. But the best I can remember, he had the same number of fingers as we have. And since he wore flowing clothing, I could not tell if there were any particular physical features that were different from us. The main thing I noticed was that he was larger than average. But then I figured that where he came from they probably have a higher standard of health. And so people would probably reach a larger average size.

D: Do you mean he was taller or just bigger?

B: Just bigger. Taller, broader shouldered, large hands. He had beautiful teeth. I don't think he ever went to a dentist in his life. He seemed to be very wise and gentle. And he said one of the things that frightened some of the other races is our tendency to be somewhat aggressive, and maybe a little belligerent sometimes. He said if we can learn to control this, our future will be very bright.

This seemed to be the only information she could supply about the strange encounter. I knew that I could always get more by speaking directly to her subconscious mind. So I asked to speak to her subconscious. I have never been denied access.

D: I am curious about this being that she saw. In actuality, did he really look the way she described him?

Oh & just for the record (so you know we're real) if you ever saw our hands in person, you would know we do not have thumbs, just 4 fingers. twitter.com/RobertZWier/st...

Sandia says: For some of your galactic neighbors, the term "species" has more of a loose connotation with broad variations in their physical appearances. In other words, some of us are definitely more of a Heinze 57 sort of blend than others.

The concept is a good one. Please remember...not all Star Nations have 5 fingers like you do. Universally their hands can not be represented with a specific number of fingers because hands, among those who visit Earth, can have anywhere from 2 to 5 fingers (plus a thumb).-Sarah are most likely from some of these different races that have visited in the past.

D: The council is the one that tells these other beings to go and do these things?

B: That's the way it should happen.

D: It doesn't always happen that way?

B: Not always, no. But they try to keep it coordinated through the council of elders, so as to do the least harm.

D: I'm finding a larger majority of people have had contact with these different beings, than we thought at first.

B: Yes, because the time for making open contact with the Earth is closer than ever before. And it is quite possible that it might happen during the lifetime of the present generation of the ones they've been watching. They're really hoping so anyway, because many are anxious for humankind to join the galactic community.

D: We have been hearing about people who say they were abducted. Do you know anything about that?

B: Now it is true that occasionally they will make a closer physical-type examination of a human being, to keep track of how the science of medicine has progressed and how human beings are still evolving. They want to be prepared for the type of human beings there will be when humankind joins the galactic community. Because when this occurs they want to offer eradication of disease. In order to do that they have to examine humans first, so they can develop the cures to these different diseases. Then they can offer the cures to us when they contact us openly.

D: That makes sense. How are these physical examinations carried out?

B: Usually with light and certain kinds of energies. Similar to the way we use x-rays to examine bones. They have various frequencies of energies that can examine particular things in the body, and tell them what kind of shape it's in, or what stage of development.

D: Is this done in the person's home in their bed?

D: Are the Watchers all of one type, one race?

S: "Terrians." as he calls us, are of the same genetic makeup. They're humanoid-like. They might have a few differences, like different types of eye color, and different types of bone structure. And two or three organ systems that are very different from humans of the Earth, but on the whole, genetically, they're very much in tune to the people of Earth, because we're all part of one galaxy. And they are watching as the Earth moves from our barbaric level into a high vibratory level, to take its place within the galactic federation. There are about thirty-six planets in this federation at this time. Earth will be the thirty-seventh, and there will be two more.

Others are visiting Earth.

S: These are the two major groups that are manifesting in this part of the galaxy at the present time. There are even more advanced beings than the Watchers, that occasionally travel to this planet. But they only come, oh, once every ten thousand years.

D: Did any of these people have anything to do with the creation of human life on our planet?

S: Yes, the Watchers have helped form man. He says you would consider these as angelic beings. And they have appeared as angels to people in the past. And, yes, they have helped form life on this planet, and evolve it to a higher degree. They are still helping at this present time, to help man's evolutionary rate. They are attempting at this time to create a more perfect human body, in terms of immunological response to disease and initial resistance to disease. So there will eventually be those, or that stock perhaps, of human bodies that would be most resistance to most form of disease on your planet now. The intent of this genetic engineering is to, in essence, create a more perfect physical body, such that the spirit, once raised in awareness, can more perfectly translate into these more perfect bodies. A more perfect spirit requires a more perfect body.

D: Then they are actually helping more than they are harming, aren't they?

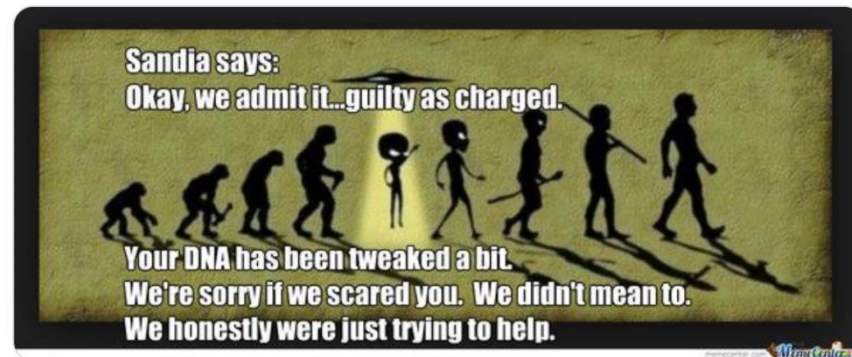

S: Indeed. There is no intent of harm in any of this.

18. Why is Sandia talking about Official First Contact (OFC) in 2021?

We see that there are eight main issues. The time frame involved and the help from Sandia are key to connecting these issues:

- ✓ The ecology of the Earth.
- ✓ Human pollution.
- ✓ Climate change.
- ✓ Energy from potentially dangerous sources, such as nuclear power.
- ✓ Global economics.
- ✓ Social implications.
- ✓ Growing concern over AI (Artificial Intelligence).
- ✓ “The Theory of Gathering Evolution” (1). This is a novel concept which postulates that as part of its evolutionary process an intelligent species will tend to one day gather or coalesce to expand its “social network”.

References : 1. Jean Pierre Petit (French scientist), talked about this novel aspect in his last book “Contacts Cosmiques” - 2018 (“Cosmic Contacts”).

With reference to the question number 18, here are a few tweets from Sandia that explain why OFC will occur in 2021.
